Homecoming at World Market Center

The first coyote homecoming was held on Oct. 21, 2013. After three "forthcoming" events awaiting a senior class to have a traditional "homecoming," the Class of 2012 was welcomed back to enjoy the festivities, complete with a football game and a dance at the World Market Center.

"It was one of the best homecomings I attended. Not only was the venue amazing, but the DJ was great. I danced from the moment I walked in the doors until the moment I walked out." LaWone Hamilton ('13) said.

The night consisted of taking pictures, dancing, and creating memories with friends.

"I love how Southwest always has dances at amazing places," Rygel Reynoso ('15) said.

Students who attended the dance voted for the homecoming court, who were nominated by their peers weeks in advance, and for the first time, winners were later announced during the dance.

"It makes me feel special that a group of people would actually vote for me," Skyler Lao ('16), homecoming lord, said. "It was the last thing I would expect."

Life of the party. Hannah Raymond ('15), Vanessa Buensalida, David David ('14), Acel Soriano ('16), and Raphael Ghirmai ('15) enjoy their time under the sea with their classmates and friends.

BITTER SWEET ENDING

Friends are forever. At the JW Marriot Hotel, Marina Triplett, receives her corsage, which was put on by her date, Cory Gates. "After all the chaos of planning and organizing, the night ended up being well worth it. I'm glad I got to spend my last homecoming with my best friend," Triplett said.

LET THE BEAT DROP

& dance

1. Teach me how to 'Dougie.' Jon Dulay ('13) leads the dance floor in the "The Dougie" as others try to copy his slick moves. "It was funny how all of a sudden everyone began joining in and following my moves," Dulay said.

2. Let the good times roll. Polina Frolova ('15) and Adrian Lee ('13) slow dance to a slowed down rendition of "Call Me, Maybe" by Carly Rae Jepsen.

3. Just you and I. Alexis Lane ('14) and her date mute their surroundings and gaze into each others eyes while slow dancing.

4. Get down like me. Nerisse Acabado ('15) shows off to her friends that she knows how to have a good time by dancing the night away.

5. Hands in the air! Jan Himor Ranae Apo, and Christian Del Rosario ('15) stick together while they throw their hands up to the beat of the music. "I had a really fun night dancing until my legs were sore," Del Rosario said.

GOOD COMPANY

1. What a mouthful. Juan Candido ('13) stuffs his mouth with the famous "Pizookie" cookie dessert at BJ's before heading to the dance. Him and his friends ordered plenty of food before actually going to the main event. "I enjoyed this night," Candido said.

2. Full of laughter. Alyssa Sutton ('13) and Regine Yray ('13) joke about their dancing skills and attempt to ignore the dance floor.

3. Paparazzi. Patrick Sundin ('14) takes a photo of Jinna Mesa, Chloe Labbate, Rachel Nepomuceno, and Leslie Frausto ('13) before heading to the dance floor.
